Norwegian-Italian Entrepreneur Transforms €400k Pandemic Loss Into Global EdTech Innovation

Elio Mondello Anzà's Mondosol Platform Now Serves 151,000+ Users Across 102 Languages

[HØNEFOSS, NORWAY – September 7, 2025] Announcement

Mondosol, the innovative multilingual educational platform founded by Italian-Norwegian entrepreneur Elio Mondello Anzà, announces its remarkable transformation from a pandemic-devastated hospitality business into a thriving global education technology company serving over 151,000 users in 102 languages.

After losing €400,000 during the COVID-19 pandemic when his top-tier Airbnb operation with 250+ listings collapsed, Anzà pivoted to digital education, creating an AI-powered learning platform that combines practical skills training with resilience coaching. The platform now generates revenue through coaching services, digital courses, and strategic partnerships with major technology companies including Hostinger, HubSpot, and InVideo.

"Failure is not the end, but a powerful teacher," says Anzà, a single father who rebuilt his business while raising his daughter Emily. "Each setback became an opportunity to rebuild, reimagine, and reinvent not just my business, but how we approach education globally."

The Mondosol platform stands out in the crowded EdTech space by offering micro-learning experiences in 102 languages, supported by 12 AI virtual assistants. With 15,000 monthly unique visitors and 50,000 newsletter subscribers, the platform focuses on practical skills development for digital nomads, international professionals, and entrepreneurs seeking resilience training.

Anzà's unique background – holding degrees from the University of Milan and Sciences Po Grenoble, speaking five languages, and managing international operations across Europe, America, and Asia – positions Mondosol as a bridge between cultures and educational approaches.

The company's affiliate program now includes over 10,000 partnerships, while its coaching services span technology, language learning, and business development. As Mondosol transitions from its current free access model to tiered pricing in 2025, the platform continues to prioritize accessibility and practical skill development.
